

Robin Fogarty Designed and Delivered Professional Development

Data! Dialogue! Decisions! The Data Difference

The analysis of data for instructional decision-making is a hallmark of schools in the 21st Century. Teachers and administrators alike need a process linked to instant, consistent and relevant data leading to instant, consistent and relevant results. Data! Dialogue! Decisions! for increased student achievement is a program that presents a collegial process involving the selection of relevant and timely data, dialogues about the data and the development of smart goal decisions about how to increase student performance. Using three concepts: meaningful teams, managed data and measurable goals, (Schmoker) the process is simple, clear and effective as a tool to analyze test scores and other achievement data.

- Managed Data
- Meaningful Teams
- Measured Goals
